

SPICE

Mrs. Winn invited the minister to return home with her for dinner on Sunday, and the good man accepted. Little seven-year-old Frank had attended church with his mother and had attended church with his mother and had listened to the sermon very attentively. The subject had been "Thrift," and the minister had waxed eloquent concerning thrift of the real and mistaken kind. After dinner was finished and the family had adjourned to the piazza, the minister asked the little boy: "Were you interested in the sermon today, my lad?" "Yes, sir," replied Frank. "I am glad to hear that you liked it," said the minister kindly. "Are you going to put the lesson into use?" "I have," answered Frank. "Indeed!" exclaimed the minister, in surprise. "And in what way?" "Why," explained the little boy, "I was going to put a nickel in the collection plate, but after you said so much about putting money to the best uses I made up my mind I'd save it for some real need."—Harper's Magazine.

"There goes another button," said the man who was standing with his thumb hitched inside his waistband.

"Didn't you know it was loose?"

"Of course, I knew it was loose. I knew it was loose just as well as I knew my hosiery needs a darning and that I ought to have a lot of needle and thread work done."

"Why don't you tell your wife about it?"

"I haven't the heart to worry her. You know, she's so sympathetic, she isn't happy unless she's knitting something to send over to Europe. Honestly, sometimes I almost wish I was one of those unhappy Belgians."—Washington Star.

She was a little girl and very polite. It was the first time she had been on a visit alone, and she had been carefully instructed how to behave.

"If they ask you to dine with them," papa had said, "you must say, 'No, thank you, I have already dined.'"

It turned out just as papa had anticipated.

"Come along, Marjorie," said her little friend's father, "you must have a bite with us."

"No, thank you," said the little girl with dignity. "I have already bitten."—Boston Globe.

It was never a happy day for Sammy's painstaking father when his young hopeful's school report arrived at his Boston home.

As for Sammy himself—well, he was a philosopher.

The awful day had come once more and father was in the lowest depths of misery.

"Sammy—Sammy," he groaned, "why is it that you are at the bottom of your class again?"

"What does it matter, father, whether I am at the top or the bottom?" queried that wise youth. "They teach the same at both ends, you know."—Philadelphia Ledger.

She—I thought you told me this was a civil court. He—so it is. She—Why, those horrid lawyers in it were as rude as they could be.—Baltimore American.

"FRAMERS OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE U.S.A." NO. 4

Gouveneur Morris—"Father of the Penny"

AMONG all the framers of the Constitution of the United States none were more adept at constructive statesmanship than the "father of the American decimal system" and originator of the copper cent. The finish, style and arrangement of the Constitution fairly belong to the brilliant and eloquent Morris. From his youth to the hour of his death he was a devoted and dauntless worker for American progress. His unrivaled ability as an orator was known throughout Europe, and his funeral orations on Washington, Clinton and Hamilton are treasured American classics. Gouveneur Morris was an indomitable supporter of the Louisiana Purchase. He it was who rescued LaFayette from prison walls and aided him from his private purse. Personally he was every handsome; his nature was impulsive, but his heart was warm and generous. He loved society, and his hospitality was famous. All his life he drank the creative brews of malt and hops, and who will dare say that it weakened his will power or detracted from his success, his fame, his glory and his might? It was upon the tenets of the Constitution of the U. S. A. that Anheuser-Busch 58 years ago founded their great institution. During these 58 years they have daily brewed from the finest barley and hops beers famous for being alive with natural force and nutriment. Their great brand BUDWEISER, because of its quality, purity, mildness and exquisite flavor, exceeds the sale of any other bottled beer by millions of bottles. BUDWEISER'S popularity grows daily, and 7500 people are daily employed to keep pace with the public demand.
